FOREWORD

Zambia held its General Elections on 12th August, 2021, which gave birth to the Thirteenth (13th) National Assembly of Zambia. The House is composed of both newly elected and re-elected Members of Parliament. In line with Article 81(1) of the Constitution of Zambia, the term of office for Members of Parliament is five (5) years and therefore, the 13th Assembly will run from 2021 to 2026. During this period, Members of Parliament are expected to perform their functions of representation, budget approval, oversight, legislation and ratification of international agreements. By performing these functions, Members ensure that the interests of the electorates in their respective constituencies and the nation at large are well taken care of.

The Public Parliamentary Handbook is, therefore, designed to be a source of information for members of the public on Members of Parliament of the 13th National Assembly. The main feature of the Handbook is what could be termed as “who is who in Parliament.” Essentially, the Handbook contains brief résumés of all the one hundred and sixty-seven (167) Members of Parliament. It also contains names and positions of senior officers of the National Assembly. The Handbook further outlines a brief history of the Zambian Parliament as well as explanatory notes on some core functions of Parliament such as the law making process and parliamentary oversight through the committee system as well as the budgeting process.

I, therefore, hope that you will find this publication informative, educative and helpful.

Rt. Hon Ms Nelly B K Mutti, MP

SPEAKER OF THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OF ZAMBIA

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE ZAMBIAN PARLIAMENT

The history of the Zambian Parliament dates back to 23rd May, 1924 when the first meeting of the Northern Rhodesia Parliament took place in Livingstone. At this point, it was referred to as the Legislative Council (LEGICO). The LEGICO was established for the administration of justice, raising of revenue, maintaining peace, order and good governance in the British protectorate. It was also a follow up to the European demands for a responsible Government that would mainly accord white settlers a larger voice in the running of affairs, than had been the case during the British South African Company rule.

The Council was, therefore, a 'whites' only assembly with all its members drawn either from a white settler community or among British immigrant staff who were working for the colonial administration. As long as the status quo continued, the formation of political parties with different interests was deemed unnecessary or inimical to European's objective of asserting their control over the Africans. In 1935, the Legislative Council began to hold its sessions at the Government Central Offices (Secretariat Building) in Lusaka, which had become the capital of Northern Rhodesia.

In the mid-1940s, there were some constitutional amendments which affected the composition of the Legislative Council. These amendments were as a result of the rise in white settler population, as well as the emergence of a new group of Africans, the African Representative Council (ARC) and the Northern Rhodesia Federation of Africa, who began to advocate for a say in the governance of their country. Among the constitutional changes, was the introduction of a system of government which took into consideration the needs and interests of all the people of Northern Rhodesia (now Zambia), as opposed to sectarian interests of a particular race. The constitutional changes also encouraged the development and practice of politics based on party rather than racial lines. This essentially led to the introduction of political parties in the Legislative Council, as members were then allowed to be elected to the Council on a political party ticket. As a result, in the Fourth Legislative Council, African interests were finally considered.

The last Legislative Council before Independence was formed after the elections of 28th January, 1964. This was under what was termed as the Self-governing Constitution, which provided for a total of 75 seats in the House. Of these, sixty-five (65) were elective on the main roll for African voters. The main parties in the contest were the United National Independence Party (UNIP), the African National Congress (ANC), and the whites only National Progressive Party (NPP). The results of the election were that UNIP won fifty-five (55) of the sixty-five (65) main roll seats and the ANC scooped the remaining ten (10) seats. The NPP secured all the ten (10) reserved roll seats. After the elections, the British Government convened the Northern Rhodesian Independence Conference to which representatives from all the political parties with seats in the Legislative Council were invited. After serious negotiations, the Conference produced an Independence Constitution, which provided for a Legislative Council to be made up of eighty (80) Members.

On 24th October, 1964, Northern Rhodesia became the independent state of Zambia and a Republic within the Commonwealth, and Mr. Kenneth David Kaunda became the first President. The Legislative Council was renamed the National Assembly of Zambia and consisted of seventy-five (75) elected Members and five (5) nominated Members.

The first meeting of the National Assembly was held on 14th December, 1964. On this day, the House elected its first Speaker, Mr. Wesley Pillsbury Nyirenda, who took over from Sir Thomas Williams. In 1967, Parliament moved from the old Secretariat at Cabinet Office to its current site, which had just been constructed, on the crown of a low hill in Lusaka. This place was, at one time, the dwelling place of village Headman, Lusaaka, after whom the City of Lusaka is now named.

In January, 1968, a constitutional amendment was passed and assented to by the President on 10th January, 1968. This raised the membership of the House from eighty (80) to one hundred and ten (110), and remained the same until 1972 when the First Republic came to an end. On 19th December, 1968, the Second National Assembly of Zambia was constituted following General Elections.

In 1973, the Constitution of Zambia Act No. 27 of 1973 was passed by Parliament to bring about a one-party government. Under the one-party State Constitution, the National Assembly had one hundred and twenty-five (125) elected and ten (10) nominated Members, in addition to the Speaker and the President. This parliamentary set-up continued up to 1990 when a group of Zambians, including businessmen, intellectuals and labour leaders met at the Garden House Hotel in Lusaka West to plan the political future of Zambia. After the meeting, a pressure group, the Movement for Multi-Party Democracy (MMD), was born. The aim of the group was to advocate for the re-introduction of multi-party politics in Zambia.

The MMD pressurised the Government to call for a referendum to determine whether the people of Zambia wanted the re-introduction of multi-party democracy or not. It did not take long to realise that the Zambian people favoured a multi-party democracy. This gave rise to the amendment of Article 4 of the 1973 Republican Constitution, which authorised the existence of only one political party, UNIP. The Constitutional Amendment repealed and replaced Article 4 of the Constitution through Act No. 20 of December, 1990 to revert the country to a multi-party political system. The Amendment Act also amended Article 64 concerning the composition of the National Assembly, which was increased to one hundred and fifty-eight (158) seats out of which one hundred and fifty (150) were elective seats and eight (8) were to be nominated by the President. The inclusion of the Speaker brought the total number of Members of Parliament to one hundred and fifty-nine (159).

On 31st October, 1991, Presidential and Parliamentary elections were held with two main parties contesting, the UNIP and the MMD. The outcome of these elections was that, out of the one hundred and fifty (150) seats, one hundred and twenty-five (125) were won by the MMD, while UNIP got the remaining twenty-five (25) seats. The next Presidential and Parliamentary elections were held in 1996 and the MMD continued to maintain a large majority of seats in the House. The MMD won one hundred and thirty-nine (139) seats, Independents (IND) ten (10), the National Party five (5), Agenda for Zambia two (2) and the Zambia Democratic Congress two (2). UNIP boycotted the 1996 elections.

After the elections in 2001, the MMD lost many of its seats in the House. It only held sixty-nine (69) seats in the House and the other seats were shared among six other parties and one independent (IND). These were the United Party for National Development (UPND) forty-nine (49), UNIP thirteen (13), the Forum for Democracy and Development (FDD) twelve (12), the Heritage Party (HP) four (04), the Zambia Republican Party (ZRP) one (01), the Patriotic Front (PF) one (01), and one IND Member. By September, 2003, the composition of the House had changed to MMD (74), UPND (44), UNIP (13), FDD (12), HP (2), ZRP (1), PF (2), and IND (1).

On 28th September 2006, Zambia held its tripartite elections i.e. Local Government, Parliamentary and Presidential Elections. These elections were contested mainly by nine political parties. These were the MMD, PF, ZRP, National Democratic Focus (NDF), All People's Congress (APC), and a newly formed party, the United Liberal Party (ULP). Three other parties also contested the elections under one umbrella known as the United Democratic Alliance (UDA). This alliance was formed to forge a strong force that would contest the 2006 elections to provide a platform for the election of a new leadership in Zambia. The parties represented under the alliance were the UPND, UNIP, and FDD. However, after the elections, the MMD emerged victorious and won most of the seats in the House. Thus as of 1st January 2007, out of one hundred and fifty (150) seats, MMD won seventy four (74), while PF won forty-three (43) seats, NDF won one (1) seat, ULP won three (3) seats and IND won three (3) seats. Under the Alliance, UPND won twenty-two (22) seats, UNIP won two (2) seats and FDD won two (2) seats. The MMD had an additional eight (8) nominated Members to make the total of 159 Members including the Speaker.

On 20th September, 2011, Zambia again held tripartite elections. These were Local Government, Parliamentary and Presidential elections in which the PF emerged winner and took over power from the MMD which was in power for 20 years. The elections were contested mainly by nine political parties. These were the MMD, PF, National Restoration Party (NAREP), Zambia for Empowerment and Democracy (ZED), UPND, UNIP, FDD, ADD and HP. The result of the 20th September elections were as follows: PF won sixty-two (62); MMD won Fifty-Four (54) seats; UPND won twenty-nine (29) seats; FFD won one (1) and IND got three (3) seats. The PF had an additional 8 nominated Members to make the total of 159 Members including the Speaker.

On 11th August, 2016, Zambia held its Presidential, Parliamentary and Local Government Elections under the Constitution of Zambia Amendment Act No. 2 of 2016 which provided for, inter alia, presidential candidates to have running mates and the winner of the election to poll 50 per cent plus one of total votes cast. The Patriotic Front re-emerged winner. The elections were contested mainly by nine Political Parties. These were the PF, UPND, FDD, the People's Alliance for Change (PAC), the Rainbow Party (RP), the United Progressive People (UPP), UNIP, the Green Party (GP) and the Democratic Assembly (DA).

The changes brought about by the Constitution of Zambia (Amendment) Act No. 2 of 2016 impacted on the composition of the House. Instead of having only the Speaker elected from outside Parliament, Members of Parliament also elect the First Deputy Speaker from outside Parliament. The Second Deputy Speaker is elected from amongst the Members of Parliament in the House. In addition to the Speaker and the First Deputy Speaker, the Republican Vice President is elected during the Presidential Elections as running-mate to the Republican President. As a result of the Constitutional Amendment, the total number of Members of Parliament, including the Speaker, the First Deputy Speaker, and the Republican Vice President is 167.

During the 2021 General Elections, the number of seats in the House remained the same because the elections were held under the same Constitution, as amended in 2016. Sixteen (16) political parties participated in the General Elections and these were: UPND, PF, NAREP, UNIP, MMD, Party for National Unity and Progress (PNUP), Third Liberation Movement (3rd LM), Patriots for Economic Progress (PEP), New Heritage Party (NHP), Economic Freedom Fighters (EFF), Zambia United for Sustainable Development (ZUSD), Leadership Movement (LM), Socialist Party (SP), Democratic Party (DP) and United Prosperous and Peaceful Zambia (UPPZ). The UPND emerged victorious having obtained more than 50 percent plus one of the total votes cast.

Following the General elections, the UPND obtained eighty-two (82) seats, the PF had fifty-nine (60), the PNUP got one (1) and there was one (1) vacancy. Meanwhile, the Independents were thirteen (13) and the nominated were eight (8). As of 1st November, 2022, the composition of the House had changed due to by-elections that were held.

The composition of the National Assembly, as of 1st November, 2022 is tabulated below:

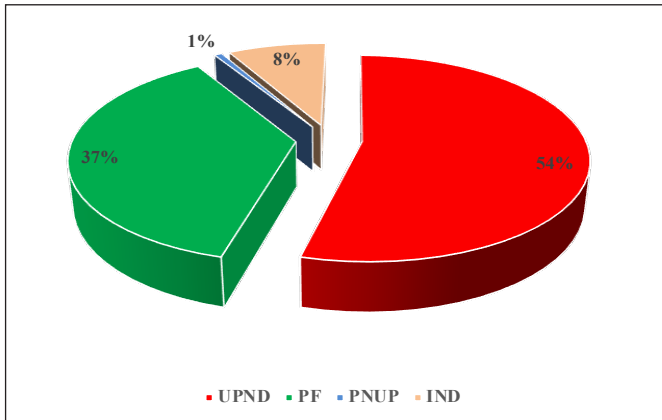

✓ UPND	84
✓ PF	58
✓ IND	13
✓ PNUP	01
✓ Nominated	08
✓ The Vice-President	01
✓ The Speaker	01
✓ The First Deputy Speaker	01
TOTAL	167

STATISTICAL PROFILE OF THE THIRTEENTH NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Party Representation

The 13th National Assembly comprises three (3) political parties and the independents. The UPND has the highest number of seats, with eighty-four (84), PF with fifty-eight (58) and the PNUP with one (1). IND Members are thirteen (13). The figure below shows the party representation in percentage form for elective seats.

It is noteworthy that the number of political parties represented in the 13th National Assembly has reduced to three (3) from five (5) that were in the 12th National Assembly. In addition, the number of independent Members has reduced from fourteen (14) in the 12th National Assembly to thirteen (13) in the 13th National Assembly.

It is also important to note that the President, according to the provision of Article 69 (1) of the Constitution of Zambia (Amendment) Act No. of 2016, nominated an additional eight (8) Members. The figure below shows the composition of the House, including the elected and nominated MPs.

Member Turnover in the Thirteenth National Assembly

The National Assembly of Zambia has historically experienced high Member turnover. The 13th National Assembly was no exception, as there were 98 new Members out of the total 156 elected Members. This represents a percentage turnover of 63, which is 7 percent more than the 56 percent that was recorded in the 12th National Assembly. Figure 3 below shows the absolute number of new MPs versus the returning MPs, as at 1st November, 2022.

Parliamentary Experience

For purposes of this analysis, a measure of experience is the number of times a Member has been elected or nominated to the House. This means that a Member who has been elected or nominated to the House more times is considered to be the most experienced. From the composition of the 13th National Assembly, which includes the elected, nominated and independent MPs as well as the Vice President, the Speaker and the First Deputy Speaker, there were sixty-eight (68) MPs who were elected or nominated to the House more than once. This represented 41 percent of the total Membership of the House. The remaining ninety-nine (99), representing 59 percent were elected or nominated to the House for the first time.

The figure below shows the absolute figures of Members who have been elected or nominated to the House for a given number of times.

Age Distribution

As of 1st November, 2022, the 13th National Assembly had an average age of 50 years, which is marginally above the 48 years for the 12th National Assembly. The 13th National Assembly also had a marginal increase from 2 to 3 percent in terms of youth representation, compared to the 12th Parliament. The age group with the highest number of Members was 46 to 50 years, which had 53 Members, representing 31 percent. The oldest Member was 74 years while the youngest was 30 years.

Gender Representation

As at 1st November, 2022, out of 167 Members of Parliament, 25 were female while the remaining 142 were male. Of the 25 female Members, only 1 was aged 35 or below. For the males, out of 142, only 4 were 35 years or below. In percentage terms, female Members made up only 15 percent while the males made up 85 percent. It is worth noting that female representation in the 13th National Assembly had reduced to 15 percent from 18 percent in the 12th National Assembly.

FUNCTIONS OF THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

The National Assembly primarily discharges the functions of making legislation; performing oversight on the Executive, budget approval and representation. These are stipulated in Article 63 (1) and (2) of the Constitution of Zambia (Amendment) Act No. 2 of 2016 as follows:

- “(1) Parliament shall enact legislation through Bills passed by the National Assembly and assented to by the President.*
- (2) The National Assembly shall oversee the performance of executive functions by:*
- (a) ensuring equity in the distribution of national resources amongst the people of Zambia;*
 - (b) appropriating funds for expenditure by State organs, State institutions, provincial administration, local authorities and other bodies;*
 - (c) scrutinising public expenditure, including defence, constitutional and special expenditure;*
 - (d) approving public debt before it is contracted; and*
 - (e) approving international agreements and treaties before these are acceded to or ratified.”*

1. LAW MAKING

One of the main functions of Parliament is to legislate or to make laws. In doing so, Members of Parliament review Bills and recommend amendments before they are finally enacted or passed. A proposed law is called a Bill. A Bill can be introduced in Parliament by a Government Minister or an ordinary Member of Parliament. There are three types of Bills and these are:

- (i) Public Bill;
- (ii) Private Bill; and
- (iii) Hybrid Bill.

A ‘Public Bill’ is a proposed law that deals with issues of public interest or issues that affect the public as a whole. The Bill can either be a Government Bill or Private Member’s Bill, depending on who has proposed it to Parliament. If a Bill has been moved by the Vice President or a Government Minister, then it is called Government Bill, but, if it is moved by a Member of Parliament who is not a Government Minister or who is a Member of the back-bench, then it is called a Private Member’s Bill. However, both are called Public Bills as long as they deal with matters of public interest. A ‘Private Bill’ on the other hand is a proposed law that deals with the interest of a private group, association or corporate body and its effects are limited to a section of society. A Member of the back-bench presents it to the National Assembly. A ‘Hybrid Bill’, as the name suggests, is a proposed law that affects both public and private interest. Like a Private Bill, a Hybrid Bill is also moved by a back-bencher.

In terms of procedure, the following are the stages through which a Bill must pass before it becomes Law:

- (i) First Reading

The First Reading of a Bill is when the Minister or the Member presenting the Bill introduces it in Parliament. The presenter simply reads out the title of the Bill. At this stage, there is no debate but the Bill is referred to a relevant Portfolio Committee of the House for detailed examination. In certain circumstances, as determined by the Speaker, some Bills may be excluded from being referred to a Committee.

(ii) Second Reading

The Second Reading of a Bill is when the Bill is debated in detail. The presenter of the Bill moves a motion for the Bill to be read the second time. At this point, the presenter of the Bill gives details of what the Bill is all about and what it intends to achieve. The report on the Bill by the relevant departmentally related Committee is also tabled and presented to the House to inform the debate. Members of Parliament then debate the Bill either by supporting or opposing it. At the end of the debate, the House votes on whether the Bill should proceed to the next stage.

(iii) Committee Stage

The Committee Stage is when the Bill is considered by the Committee of the Whole House. The Committee examines the Bill in detail clause by clause. Members are free to make amendments to the Bill. The purpose of this stage is to perfect the Bill in terms of content, purpose, language and punctuation to ensure that the ideas contained therein are properly expressed.

(iv) Report Stage

The Report Stage of a Bill is when the Report of the Committee of the Whole House is considered and debated by the House. Members are free to make further amendments during the Report Stage of the Bill. This stage takes place when a Bill has been amended at Committee stage.

(v) Third Reading

The Third Reading of a Bill is when the Bill is read to the House after the Committee Stage or Report Stage. This is the final stage that the House has to look at the Bill and be satisfied that the Bill has been properly considered and resolves accordingly. At this point, the Bill is moved without debate and cannot be amended.

(vi) Presidential Assent

After a Bill has been passed by Parliament, it has to be presented to the President for assent. The President may sign the Bill into law or may refer it to the National Assembly for reconsideration. This assent or reservation by the President has to be done within twenty-one (21) days after receipt of the Bill. After it has been assented to, the law takes effect when it is published or at a date indicated in the Act. A signed Bill is called an "Act of Parliament". If the President has reservations on the Bill, he or she may refer it to the National Assembly for reconsideration again. The National Assembly may amend the Bill based on the President's recommendations and resend it for assent within seven (7) days or pass the Bill without amendment, by a vote of at least two-thirds of all the Members of Parliament. If the Bill has been passed on two-thirds majority by the Assembly without amendment, the Speaker should resubmit it to the President within seven (7) days of passing. However, if the National Assembly fails to pass it based on the two-thirds rule, then the Bill or any other Bill of substantially the same subject matter shall not be presented to the Assembly in that particular Session.

2. OVERSIGHT

The parliamentary oversight function is one of the cornerstones of democracy. Oversight is a means for holding the Executive accountable for its actions and for ensuring that it implements policies in accordance with the laws and budget passed by Parliament. There are various platforms through which Parliament performs its oversight function including asking questions, Raising Motions on key policy matters and generally debating policy matters. Parliament Committees also provide an effective platform for discharging the oversight function.

2.1 PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEES

In the Zambian Parliament, Committees are established in accordance with Article 80 of the Constitution of Zambia (Amendment) Act No. 2 of 2016 as well as the National Assembly of Zambia Standing Order No. 165. It is important to note that Committees provide an opportunity for more detailed investigation and discussions on various matters, thereby relieving pressure on the House. This, therefore, makes the parliamentary committee system a very important mechanism for ensuring that parliaments perform their core functions effectively and efficiently.

Parliamentary committees have been in existence in Zambia as far back as the pre-independence era. Over the years, Committees have undergone reforms and procedural changes due to a number of factors such as increased governmental responsibilities and activities.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution and the Standing Orders, Committees are established at the first sitting of the National Assembly. In selecting members of the Committees, consideration is made to ensure equitable political party representation, including independent Members. In addition, gender, experience and qualifications of Members are also considered. Except for the Standing Orders Committee, all other Committees have a total membership of not more than ten (10) Members of Parliament, including the chairperson and vice-chairperson.

2.2 TYPES OF COMMITTEES

According to the Standing Orders, the National Assembly may establish three types of Committees, namely: Committees of the Whole House; Select Committees; and Standing Committees. Committees of the Whole House are those that involve the entire Membership of the House except the Speaker. These Committees consider various matters such as Committee Stage of a Bill. Select Committees are ad hoc in nature, established from time to time to consider specific matters requiring Parliamentary approval. For example, a select committee may be constituted to scrutinise a Presidential appointment that is subject to ratification by the National Assembly.

Standing Committees are Committees established for the life of the Assembly. These are further classified into three (3), namely, Housing Keeping, General Purposes and Portfolio.

2.2.1 House Keeping Committees

House Keeping Committees are mainly concerned with matters related to the administration and management of the House itself. Currently, there are four (4) House Keeping Committees as set out below.

- (i) Standing Orders Committee. This Committee serves as the Management Committee of the National Assembly. It has the mandate to consider all proposed amendments to the Standing Orders, appoint Members to serve on various Committees and perform any other duties conferred to it by the Assembly. The Committee is chaired by the Honourable Speaker.
- (ii) House Business Committee. The Committee determines Business to be conducted or considered by the House and other matters referred to it by the House. The Speaker is the Chairperson of the Committee and the First Deputy Speaker is the Vice Chairperson.
- (iii) Committee on Privileges and Absences. The Committee is mandated to assist the Speaker in dealing with matters relating to the privileges and discipline of Members of Parliament. In addition, the Committee makes rules for determining disciplinary matters of Members. This Committee is chaired by the First Deputy Speaker.
- (iv) Parliamentary Reforms and Modernisation Committee. The Committee is responsible for, among other duties referred to it, examining and proposing reforms to the powers, procedures and practices, organisation and facilities of the National Assembly. In proposing such reforms, the Committee is expected to put into consideration the balance of power between the respective constitutional responsibilities, roles of the National Assembly and the Government and the duties of other Committees. The Chairperson of this Committee is the Second Deputy Speaker.

2.2.2 General Purposes Committees

General purposes Committees are Committees whose mandate is not confined to any specific ministry as the issues that they consider are applicable to all ministries, depending on situations and the issues involved. The Committees elect their own Chairpersons and Vice Chairpersons at the beginning of Parliament. Currently, there are four (4) General Purposes Committees as set out below.

- (i) Public Accounts Committee. The Committee is mandated to examine accounts showing the appropriation of sums granted by the Assembly to meet the public expenditure, the Report of the Auditor General on the accounts and such other accounts. In addition, the Committee considers other matters that may be referred to it by the Honourable Speaker or the House. The Chairperson of the Committee should not be a member of the political party in Government.
- (ii) Committee on Delegated Legislation. The Committee is mandated to scrutinise and report to the House on whether the powers to make orders, regulations, rules, sub-rules and by-laws, as delegated by Parliament are being properly exercised by any person or authority within such delegation. This delegated legislation must be in line with the provisions of the Constitution or statute under which they are made, not trespass unduly on personal rights and liberties, not make the rights and liberties of citizens depend on administrative decisions, and are concerned only with administrative details and not amount to substantive legislation which is a matter for Parliamentary enactment. The Committee is also mandated to exercise the powers as may be conferred on it by the Honourable Speaker of the House.

- (iii) Committee on Government Assurances. The Committee is mandated to scrutinise all assurances, promises or undertakings made by the Vice-President or Cabinet Minister on the Floor of the House, with the objective of ensuring that these are implemented. The Committee also comments on delayed implementation as well as the adequacy of the action taken. Further, the Committee is mandated to follow up on the implementation of the resolutions of the House on Private Members' Motion as well as exercise the powers as may be conferred to it by the Honourable Speaker or the House.
- (iv) Planning and Budgeting Committee. The mandate of the Committee is to, among other things, examine Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure, including Supplementary Estimates of Expenditure and Excess Expenditure as well as study and report on matters related to coordination, control and monitoring of the performance of the National Budget. The Committee is also mandated to examine tax rates and estimates, economic and budgetary policies and programmes with direct budget outlay. Further, the Committee may also consider matters referred to it by the Honourable Speaker or the House.

2.2.3 Portfolio Committees

Portfolio Committees are those whose mandate is as much as possible, restricted to specific functions of government ministries and departments. By every means possible, Portfolio Committees are established to relate to the structure of Government. The specific functions of each Portfolio Committee are provided for under Standing Order No. 197. Generally, their functions include, among others, studying and reporting to the House on the mandate, management, administration and operations of Government ministries, departments and agencies that fall under their portfolios, in order to make appropriate recommendations. Currently, there are fifteen (15) Portfolio Committees and these are:

- (i) Agriculture, Lands and Natural Resources;
- (ii) Media, Information and Communication Technologies;
- (iii) Education, Science and Technology;
- (iv) Energy, Water Development and Tourism;
- (v) Health, Community Development and Social Services;
- (vi) Legal Affairs, Human Rights and Governance;
- (vii) National Guidance and Gender Matters;
- (viii) Local Government Accounts;
- (ix) Local Governance, Housing and Chiefs' Affairs;
- (x) National Economy, Trade and Labour Matters;
- (xi) National Security and Foreign Affairs;
- (xii) Parastatal Bodies;
- (xiii) Cabinet Affairs;
- (xiv) Transport, Works and Supply; and
- (xv) Youth, Sport and Child Matters.

2.3 HOW COMMITTEES WORK

At the beginning of each Session, Committees consider and adopt programmes of work which define the course and scope of their activities during a particular Session. Each Committee decides the best way of carrying out its activities based on its terms of reference. The Committees identify stakeholders to provide information on any issues that they are considering. In addition, members of the public who indicate interest in making submissions before a Committee on a topic under consideration are allowed to provide information in writing. All stakeholders submit written memoranda containing the required information to the Committees within a given period. The stakeholders are then invited to appear before it physically or virtually, depending on the prevailing circumstances, to give oral submissions and clarify any issues that may arise from their written memoranda.

It is important to note that Standing Order No. 174 empowers the Committees to invite submissions from any persons on any matter within its terms of reference, subject to the provisions of Part III of the National Assembly (Powers and Privileges) Act, Chapter 12 of the Laws of Zambia, as amended by the National Assembly (Powers and Privileges) (Amendment) Act No. 13 of 2016. Standing Order No. 182 further empowers the Committees to engage experts as they may deem necessary in furtherance of their mandates.

Although persons appearing before the Committees are required to observe directives and conform to such rules as Chairpersons shall require in accordance with the Standing Orders, they do not appear as accused persons, but to assist Committees to better understand issues before them.

2.3.1 Tabling of Committee Reports

It is obligatory that Committees table annual reports in the House during the Session. The reports contain recommendations to the Executive on matters they have considered. Once a Committee tables the report, the Chairperson of the Committee presents a motion highlighting salient matters in the report and urges the House to adopt it.

2.3.2 Action-Taken Report

In accordance with established parliamentary practice and procedure as well as Standing Order No. 180, the Executive is required to submit an Action-Taken Report to the National Assembly which should be laid on the Table of the House within sixty (60) days from the date it is adopted by the House. The Action-Taken Report provides the responses by the Executive to a Committee's recommendations as contained in the report. In this regard, consideration of the Action-Taken Report is always part of every Committee's programme of work.

2.4 SERVICING OF PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEES

The Clerk of the National Assembly is the Chief Advisor to all Committees. Committees are assisted in all their deliberations by a secretariat of Committee staff led by the Principal Clerk of Committees. The staff in the Committee Department are charged with the responsibility of carrying out administrative, procedural and advisory duties. However, there are some Committees which are not serviced by staff in the Committee Department such as the Standing Orders Committee, House Business Committee, Parliamentary Reforms and Modernisation Committee, and Committee on Privileges and Absences.

2.5 CHAIRPERSONS OF COMMITTEES

Except for the Speaker and Deputy Speakers, Chairpersons and Vice Chairpersons are elected at the first meeting of the Committee presided over by the First Deputy Speaker or Second Deputy Speaker. Standing Order No. 168 provide that the Chairperson and Vice-Chairperson, must by all means necessary, unless practically impossible, be of opposite gender. In addition, they must not be members of the same political party. Subject to other provisions in the Standing Orders, Chairpersons and the Vice-Chairpersons are expected to hold office for a period of five (5) years.

The Chairpersons and Vice Chairpersons of Committees for the Thirteenth (13th) National Assembly as well as Clerking Officers are listed in the table below.

3. BUDGET APPROVAL

Parliament exercises budgetary control over the Executive in matters of finance through parliamentary Committees such as the Budget Committee and Public Accounts Committee. Budgetary oversight provides financial accountability. Parliaments or MPs approve and scrutinise government spending by highlighting waste within publicly funded services. Further, Parliaments have a role to play in approving public debt before it is contracted. Their aim is to improve the economy, efficiency and effectiveness of government expenditure.

3.1 THE BUDGETING PROCESS

The Budgeting Process is conducted in accordance with the provisions of the National Planning and Budgeting Act No. 1 of 2020. The Act highlights the process as follows:

Step 1: Consultations

This is the stage where a detailed policy paper is prepared. The paper outlines the economic objectives of the country over a three year horizon. In addition, the paper contains annual performance review of the National Development Plan, new projects proposals and annual output targets to be achieved over the Medium Term Expenditure Framework. It is expected that policy paper is completed by the second Friday of April. By the last Friday of April, the Minister should have received budget submissions which include revenues and expenditure proposals, from both state and non-state actors, which should subsequently be submitted to the Secretary to the Treasury by the First Friday of May. Thereafter, the Secretary to the Treasury consults Constitutional Offices on the proposed policy directions and resource implications by the Second Friday of May.

Step 2: Preparation of Budget Policy Concept Paper and submission to Cabinet

Once the consultations are done at stage 1 above, the budget policy concept paper is then prepared and submitted to Cabinet for approval. The paper, basically, contains budget proposals adopted over the next three years. It is expected that this paper is submitted to Cabinet by the Second Friday of June.

Step 3: Preparation of a Medium Term Budget Plan or Green Paper

The Medium Term Budget Plan (MTBP), which includes the macroeconomic framework for a given three year period as well as targets for economic growth, inflation and domestic borrowing, forms the basis of implementation of the National Development Plan. This document is prepared in consultation with key stakeholders such as the Bank of Zambia, Zambia Revenue Authority and the Zambia Statistical Agency. Once the MTBP is finalised, the fiscal framework which indicates the total resources (Revenue) that are available for the Central Government Operations (Expenditure) in a 3 year period, is developed.

Step 4: Issuance of the Green Paper (MTBP)

Essentially, the Green paper is a consultative document drawn from the macroeconomic and fiscal frameworks, outlining Government's intentions in a three year horizon. The Green Paper should be issued for consultations by the second Friday of July. Stakeholders involved in the consultations at this stage include Parliament (Committees), Civil Society Organisations or Non-Governmental Organisations, Donors or Co-operating Partners and the general public through the print media.

Step 5: Issuance of the Call Circular

The Budget Call Circular is simply a document that contains key policies, parameters and procedures for budget preparation. It also contains resource ceilings and expenditure allocations to various spending agencies. This paper should be issued by the Second Friday of July.

Step 6: Budget Hearings

Budget hearings are held with Government institutions where their budget proposals are scrutinised to ensure that they are consistent with Government policy. The hearings should be held by the last Friday of August. Thereafter, the paper is presented to Cabinet for approval.

Step 7: National budget policy statement and National Budget

According to the Act, the Policy Statement should be delivered to Parliament on the last Friday of September or 90 days before close of current fiscal year. The Policy Statement usually contains an overview of the macroeconomic environment, the objectives and priorities of the proposed estimates, a summary of projects and programmes, deficit or surplus projected, description of fiscal strategy and government borrowing and lending limits.

Step 8: Approval by the National Assembly

This is the stage where the National Assembly approves the National Budget after debating it. This is supposed to be done before the close of the fiscal year.

Step 9: Preparation of the White Paper

After the Budget has been approved for a particular fiscal year, it is implemented within the year. 30 days after its approval, the Ministry prepares a White Paper, which is simply the approved MTBP.

4. REPRESENTATION

Parliament is a representative institution. It consists of MPs, as elected officials who are expected to drive the agenda of their constituents in the House. When Parliament adjourns, MPs are expected to go and visit their parliamentary offices in their constituencies, where local people can go to discuss matters affecting the common good of the constituency. Further, MPs regularly visit schools, hospitals and inspect constituency projects and generally meet as many people as possible to get an insight into issues they may discuss when they return to Parliament. The ways in which Members typically serve their constituents includes acting as a lobbyist for local interest groups; being a communicator for national policy matters; and playing an active community role. Members provide a direct link between their constituents and Parliament. Each elected Member has an office in their constituency which acts as a central point for the constituents to engage the MP even when the member is out of the constituency attending the parliamentary assignments.

5. HOW TO ATTEND PARLIAMENT AS A MEMBER OF THE PUBLIC, MEDIA OR SPECIAL SECTION OF THE PUBLIC

Parliament is open to members of the public who may wish to undertake familiarisation tours of Parliament Buildings or to attend sittings of the House, either as individuals or in groups. All those wishing to visit Parliament either for familiarisation tours or to attend sittings of the House can write to the Clerk of the National Assembly, P O Box 31299, Lusaka, send an email to info@parliament.gov.zm or simply come to Parliament Buildings. Upon arrival at Parliament Buildings, visitors will be required to identify themselves using a passport or national registration card. Those to whom permission has been granted to sit in the Visitors' Galleries will be ushered to the appropriate Galleries.

Before gaining access to the Galleries, visitors will be issued with passes by the Sergeant-at-Arms or the Clerk's Office.

All those wishing to visit Parliament are required to wear smart attire, either office or casual wear.

Visitors may not take into the Galleries such articles as walking sticks, umbrellas, briefcases, or parcels of any type, newspapers, magazines or cellular phones. Any such articles must be deposited at the Reception Desk. Visitors to the Galleries will be given copies of the Order Paper, which shows the order in which the business for that particular day will be taken.

While in the Galleries, visitors are not allowed to take part in the proceedings of the House other than rising when the Speaker enters or leaves the Chamber. They are also not allowed to rise or move from one place to another while the Speaker is speaking. They are advised not to take notes, applaud, laugh or converse whilst the House is sitting. They must withdraw from the Galleries when so ordered.

Taking of photographs is permissible. However, visitors wishing to take photographs should seek guidance from the officers accompanying them during their visit.

5.1 HOW TO ATTEND PARLIAMENT AS A MEMBER OF THE MEDIA

Pressmen and women wishing to attend the sittings of the House should be accredited to the Zambia News and Information Services (ZANIS). The names are then submitted by ZANIS to the National Assembly's Public and International Relations Department. Based on the accreditation list, permanent press passes which are valid for one year are issued. Temporary passes are also issued to those whose names may not have been included on the list at the time the permanent passes are issued.

Pressmen and women covering the Parliamentary sittings are expected to sit in the Press Gallery. They should at all times ensure that their reporting is factual and that no points that are ruled out of order by the Presiding Officer are recorded. Cameramen and women in the Chamber must not cause any unnecessary obstruction and disturbance to the proceedings. The Standing Orders no. 213 to 220 provide the rules for broadcasting proceedings of the Assembly, whether in the Chamber or Committee.

Those wishing to obtain copies of debates, reports and other documents may do so from either the Publications Department or the Parliamentary Press Liaison Officer.

5.2 INSTRUCTIONS FOR SPECIAL SECTIONS OF THE PUBLIC

Schools, government officials, tourists, diplomats and others can attend Parliament on the same grounds as any other member of the public. Diplomats may, however, obtain permanent passes for particular meetings of the House through the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation.

5.3 PARLIAMENT TELEVISION AND RADIO

In order to bring Parliament closer to the people, the National Assembly of Zambia established dedicated Television and Radio stations that broadcasts live, parliamentary proceedings in the House or Committees. This allows members of the public to follow what their representatives are deliberating on in the House.

Parliament TV is available on channels 272 on DSTV, 100 on GOTV and 5 on Star Times. Parliament Radio is on the following frequencies:

CONCLUSION

Parliament is an organ that plays an important role in ensuring that the principles of good governance and accountability are adhered to. Its powers are derived from the Constitution of Zambia which vests it with the duty of making laws, representing the people, authorising the expenditure of public funds and overseeing Government activities. In performing all these functions, the needs of the people should intrinsically be reflected. In order to achieve this, members of the public must be informed, not only about the operations of Parliament but also of their representatives. This Handbook has provided brief information of Members of the Thirteenth (13th) National Assembly which runs from 2021 to 2026. In addition, it has provided some brief information on the history of the Zambian Parliament, the Committee system and senior officers of the National Assembly. It is hoped that members of the public will find this Handbook informative and useful.
